

Describe the video in detail.

The video captures a snowy day in a city. A man is riding a bicycle down a snow-covered street, surrounded by various vehicles and pedestrians. The street is lined with parked cars on both sides, and there is a truck parked further down the road. A few pedestrians can be seen walking along the street, some of them carrying backpacks. In addition to the bicyclist, there are two other people in the video. One person is standing near the parked cars, while the other is walking down the street. The presence of these individuals adds to the busy and bustling atmosphere of the snowy city street.

What should the ego car pay attention to in this situation? Please describe the reason.

The ego car should pay attention and be cautious of the bicyclist in the road. The reason for this is that bicyclists can sometimes be difficult to spot in the snow, especially if they are riding in the same lane as the car. Additionally, the snow can reduce visibility, making it difficult for the driver to spot the bicycles and other vehicles on the road, increasing the risk of a collision.
